

MEMPHIS APPEAL

OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF THE CITY.

THURSDAY MORNING, MAY 11, 1871

These vigorous protests of much industrial, Republican journals as the Chicago Tribune, the New York Nation, the Cincinnati Commercial and the Springfield Republican, against the Ku-Klux act, the Ku-Klux proclamation, the San Domingo annexation and kindred irregularities, have drawn upon them the fire of the New York Tribune, and elicited a large defense of its own position as a party paper.

They port of Norfolk is unexcelled as a harbor by any in America. It will hold ships enough to transport the products of the whole South, and the ships will draw thirty feet water each, and is situated south of the region which ships so much dread in winter on account of ice. As a mere port it is, for all seasons and under all circumstances, the very best in America. But the possession of natural advantages alone will not make great cities, draw commerce and create prosperity. Human enterprise must have a share in the work, to which we would now call the attention of our Norfolk neighbors. It is to be done to-day, which we are slow to credit, that the Allan steamers decide not to receive freight at Norfolk, but will take it at Baltimore; in other words, the Baltimore and Ohio railroad has succeeded in forming a combination with the steamers, by which Baltimore becomes their port of departure and arrival, and Norfolk remains, as formerly, a good harbor and an excellent place to enjoy fish and game in. This does not meet our wants and hopes, however. Norfolk must make an effort, and in this direction we have intimated in our previous articles. First, let us labor together to the end that a consolidation of the railroads between this city and Norfolk shall occur, and then move everything to induce the railroads to lead off in the enterprise of putting on a great first-class line to Europe, and let the indentment be made by the city of Norfolk to take one-fourth of the $2,000,000 stock required for the undertaking. It is worth their folly to pay for English capitalists to come and do for us what we are unwilling to do for ourselves. Would money invested in such a line of steamers be profitably employed? Undoubtedly it would in several ways. As a mere investment it would pay forty per cent. per annum, and as a means of increasing the trade and commerce of the place, and thereby raise the value of property, it would soon be returned several times over. How fairly a return is a half million of dollars compared to the grand achievement of direct trade! Why have the Baltimoreans, situated at the upper end of a series of State made such efforts in the present case? Simply because a line of steamers from there direct to Liverpool will pay. Now, if it will pay Baltimore, it will pay Norfolk; and if business can be found at Baltimore for ships, more business may be found at Norfolk. The railroad companies need to be reminded that lightning ships over the bar at the mouth of the Mississippi by flagging boats, as proposed by Colonel Ward, is a very serious problem, and the moment it is accomplished, steamers of 4000 tons will offer exceedingly low rates on cotton from New Orleans to Europe. Now the moral is this: In order to compete successfully with such vessels, our own must, in order to make a connection with equally good steamers at our next point as possible on the Atlantic seaboard. Such steamers will never have until you build them, and you cannot build them without consolidation of interest to secure entire concert of action.

Our dispatches a few days since stated that the Alabama and Chattanooga road, which extends from Chattanooga, Tennessee, to Meridian, Mississippi, a distance of 260 miles, will be completed on next Saturday. It may possibly be delayed a few days on account of high waters, having been delayed on that account more than two weeks. This will be an important event in the railroad history of the South. The Stanton commenced this road about two years ago, and will have it running through, in a few days, from Chattanooga to Meridian. This road penetrates the great interior region of Alabama, and opens to the world immense treasures of coal, iron and marble. It has been one of the most difficult roads in the South to build, because it had no concessions, null completed, and would not more than pay running expenses. If it would do that much even. With the very liberal aid granted by the State of Alabama, it would, in all probability, never have been built; at least, not for very many years. When completed, it will be one of the most important and best paying roads in the whole country. In connection with the Nashville and Chattanooga, and with the Vicksburg and Meridian, and the Vicksburg and Memphis, it will give it a commanding position. By increasing the business of this line, it will do very greatly, it will enable that road to put in first-class equipment and to make time equal to any road in the country. This will make the shortest, quickest and best route from Memphis to New York, through East Tennessee, the Alabama and Chattanooga road, and will greatly benefit all the manufacturing and commercial interests of East Tennessee, and in that way add much to the business of Memphis. The Memphis and Chattanooga road, since Memphis is the nearest city on the Mississippi river to Chattanooga and Knoxville. As East Tennessee improves and increases in manufacturing wealth, Memphis, and the Memphis and Charleston road, must receive the benefit. The Alabama and Chattanooga road, when completed and put into running order, as it will be in a few days, will yield an annual income of $1,171,800, which will be more than eight per cent. on $13,000,000, and if it should yield as much per mile as the Nashville and Chattanooga road, whose net earnings last year amounted to

GRANT

A Movement to Defeat Him in 1872.

A New Departure—The Troubled Waters—The Free Traders and the Anti-Grant Men.

New York, May 8, 1871.—The National Intelligence, formerly published in Washington and now in New York, and edited by Hon. Alexander DeRue, publishes in its important article this morning on the chairmanship of the Committee on Ways and Means, that Speaker Blaine has lately visited that city and had an interview with numerous leading manufacturers and merchants, in which the tariff formed the principle theme and conversation. The parties, with one voice, united in demanding the present system as highly injurious to their interests and of the country. They were mostly all radical business men, who had rendered themselves prominent during the war in supporting the Union cause. Nevertheless, they declared to Speaker Blaine that if he appointed Judge Kelley or any other protectionist as Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, they should regard the act as a declaration of hostility, and should thereupon throw their money, votes and influence with the Conservative party. Mr. Blaine in return assured them of his intention to investigate the matter, as he already had strong reason to believe he found that their voice was that of the commercial classes generally. He should certainly pay great deference to it in appointing the chairman of the committee—one of the gentlemen who was present has even intimated to us the person—an unqualified protectionist.

REVENUE REFORMER. When the Speaker himself has thought of appointing as chairman, this conclusion may not be fully warranted by the language used. There can be no doubt, however, that if the Speaker defers to the views of the business community in this matter, he will appoint a revenue reformer. But on the other hand, how can he steer clear of the difficulty, raised by the fact that the Radical party is irrevocably committed to protection. It is true that the New York Tribune and Chicago Tribune are free trade papers. It is also true that since Speaker Blaine's visit to the city, the Tribune, heretofore obstinate in pinning its party to protection and to its party, and strange, may even be induced to agree with this policy, suddenly conceding to every Radical right to support protection or oppose it at will, but the former journals are hardly Radical party organs. While the Radical press generally has been hard to ingratiate protection upon its party platform, easily to shake off. Now it will not do for Speaker Blaine to appoint a man like General Garfield, who is neither fish nor fowl. The man he appoints must be an unquestionable revenue reformer, or a positive protectionist. If the former, the tariff will be immediately cut down after Congress meets.
